OU's Expanding Campus Boasts Lively History

This Victorian frame mansion at 25th and Pratt Streets marked the beginning of Omaha University in 1908. Dubbed Redick Hall it had an enrollment of 26 students and had a faculty of five the first year.

By Leigh Wilson

The University of Omaha, just a youngster as Universities go, can boast of a lively history; and one of rapid growth.

Today, the multi-million dollar campus has more buildings than the original university had faculty members. Omaha University was conceived in the minds of far-seeing Omahans, nurtured by founder Dr. Donald E. Jenkins, and developed by uncounted thousands of instructors and students.

For 11 years after Dr. Jenkins founded the Omaha University, he served as its president without asking or receiving a cent of salary.

Mansion Is First OU

The University took the form of a three-story Victorian frame mansion at 25th and Pratt Streets. With a little remodeling and a lot of imagination, the old house, dubbed Redick Hall, became a place of higher learning in 1908 for 26 students. The school had a faculty of five that first year.

The 1912 Gala Day Princess, Gladys Jerome, wrote in an early yearbook that she had chemistry in the garage, history in the dining room, chapel in the parlor, and for some unexplained reason, the physics lab occupied the kitchen, so her food classes were in a bedroom.

Coeds Bounce Bottles

The first coeds (all ten of them) had a lounge in the tower of the old mansion and often entertained themselves by bouncing milk bottles down the carpeted stairs to the boys below. One time when they tired of bouncing the bottles, some enterprising students found some old wine in the cellar of the house and promptly began to dispense with it in the manner best befitting old wine . . . until the faculty discovered what was happening. The instructors confiscated the loot, but somehow, no records were kept indicating what they did with it . . .

Those first five instructors must have been busy. They handled such subjects as Economics, Sociology, German, English, Greek, Chemistry, Physics, Literature, Math, Psychology, and Philosophy.

In 1912, Home Economics classes were opened up for the women. The pride of the department was a real sewing machine. One of the most popular Home Ec courses was "Drafting patterns—cutting and making of undergarments" . . . fondly called, no doubt, "Undies 101."

Early Football Suffered

Football came to the OU campus in 1911. The Omaha Cardinals, as they were known, didn't start off too well, losing in 1913 to Creighton 128-0. But as the years went by, the team improved, and in 1928 the scoreless Cards held Chadron to only 117 points. In the late 30's, the team, then the Indians, began what was to be a long series of winning seasons, climaxed by a 1954 Tangerine Bowl victory over Kentucky State.

The University built a gymnasium in 1911 to house the new basketball team. The first team had a 3-2 season under the coaching of "Dutch" Nagle.

The Omaha Law School, which originated in 1897, affiliated with OU in 1911. Most law classes were conducted downtown at night by Omaha-lawyers and judges. The Law School tuition was a whopping 25-dollars per year.

In 1917, a third building, Joslyr Hall, was added to the growing campus. Ten years later, with two dozen faculty members, the enrollment was 1,100.

Night Classes Introduced

When the taxpayers voted their support in 1930, the school became the Municipal University of Omaha.

The School of Adult Education was born in 1931. Two years (Continued on Page 3.)

Pep Club, Students Join Team Support

All Omaha University pep organizations and students will combine their efforts next Friday morning for a big send-off rally to spark the team as they leave for their game with Fort Hayes.

The rally will be in the field-house parking lot at 8:30 a.m. on October 13.

The Indians have 2-1 record for the season. Their only loss was a 13-12 squeaker to Colorado Mines on September 30.

President of Omaha University, Dr. Milo Bail, urged students to attend saying "you can really help the team by giving them a big send-off when they play on foreign territory. Cheers may ring in their ears and result in touchdowns."

A small pep band along with the cheerleaders, indiannes, feathers and interpep will be present.

Classes will not be dismissed but all students free at that hour are urged to attend.

Official Notices

Petitions for Student Council, Homecoming Princess, Class officers, and Typical Freshman elections may be picked up in Dean Curt Siemers office Oct. 9. There is an opening on the Student Council for one Junior girl. These petitions must be filled out and returned by Oct. 13.

Students planning to graduate in January, 1962, should make application in the Registrar's office, Room 220 in the Administration Building, starting Oct. 9. The fee for an undergraduate degree is $10, and $15 is charged for a graduate degree.

Auditions will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday at 1 p. m. for disc jockeys and newsmen for KWOU. Everyone interested see Terry Forsberg in Room G-13 at the east end of the Applied Arts Building.

Michel Bellis, director of short courses and conferences has announced that students wishing to attend only specific programs in the "University Nights" series may secure tickets for $2 per program, instead of paying the $15.00 fee for the entire series.

Double Billing for Middle East Affair University Night

Those attending the "Middle East Institute" and the "University Nights" lecture next Friday will hear two speakers for the price of one.

Dr. Nasrallah Fatemi, Professor of Social Sciences at Fairleigh Dickinson University and Reverend Karl Baehr, Executive Director of the American Christian Palestine Committee, will be featured jointly at each of the two conferences both of which will deal with Middle Eastern affairs.

Dr. Fatemi, who has had an active career as a statesman, diplomat, author and educator, will speak on "The Middle East; Background and Contemporary Conflicts" at the all-day Middle East Conference.

Reverend Baehr, a member of the Speakers Research Committee of the United Nations, will speak on "The Development Potential of the Middle East and Contemporary American Policy" at the all-day affair.

Reverend Baehr, together with Dr. Fatemi will interpret "The Turbulent Near East."

National political figures Roman Hruska, Glenn Cunningham, and Gerald Ford will be present to help Omaha University celebrate Founders' Day this week end.

Founders Day events start at 10 a. m. this morning.

Regents, former trustees, faculty, staff, alumni, students and citizen of Omaha will gather for the ceremonies in the University Stadium.

Gerald R. Ford, Jr., representative from Michigan, will discuss "Our Responsibility for the Defense of the Nation." Congressman Ford is a ranking member of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee.

The program will begin with a procession of the University marshals, deans, faculty and staff, guests, trustees, regents, speakers and presiding officer, student council members, the University president and the president of the Board of Regents.

Banners Mark Clubs

Organizations are asked to form under their banners in the stadium. People not belonging to specified organizations may sit behind the club section.

Open House Ends OU Founder's Day

An Open House at Omaha University on Sunday will climax the Founder's Day celebration. Families of OU students and residents of Omaha are invited to tour the University buildings and facilities from 2-5 p. m.

All departments will be open and faculty personnel will be on hand to explain their duties.

Alpha Lambda Delta, Waakiya, and Student Council members will be stationed in university buildings to direct visitors.

A half-hour band concert will be presented at 3:30 p. m. in Room 101 of the Applied Arts building.

Members of Alpha Lambda Delta and Waakiya will serve coffee and cookies to the visitors from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Student Center.

Faculty Urged To Support UCS

"The UCS budget this year is three per cent over last year's, but seven per cent is really needed," Mr. Jack L. Wiley a UCS chairman told faculty and employees of the university at a Wednesday afternoon contribution rally.

There are two distinct reasons for the rise in the UCS budget, he said. Omaha is a growing city, and as the city grows, its needs grow.

Another is that 70 per cent of the money is spent on children, and in a growing metropolitan city these needs keep increasing.

The drive has been shortened by three weeks this year, Mr. Wiley said. This year we want your money, and we want it fast. This is to keep the campaign from dragging.

The 53rd anniversary of Founders Day is held in honor of Daniel E. Jenkins, first president and founder of the University. His son, W. Robert Jenkins, president of Columbian Mutual Life Insurance, will tell how his father's dream for a municipal university began.

Frank Morrison, governor of Nebraska, and Harry Trustin, vice-president of the Omaha City Council, will be among the 26 guest speakers.

Senators Among Guests

Among the 100 honored guests on the platform will be Senator Roman Hruska and Congressman Glenn Cunningham from Nebraska.

A free barbeque luncheon will be served in the area west of the Student Center.

In case of rain the program will be held in the Fieldhouse and the luncheon in the Student Center.

All buildings on campus will be closed during the ceremonies.

Assistant dean of student personnel Curt Seimers said, "Founders Day presents an opportunity for students to show their appreciation to citizens and alumni and also spirit for the University."

Registration Total Is 7,177 Students

Registration figures are now complete for both day and night school. According to Registrar Alice Smith, 7,177 students are attending Omaha University.

The day school enrollment numbers 3,592, and this figure is divided among the five classes as follows: freshmen, 1,540; sophomores, 620; juniors, 444; seniors, 743; and specials, 245.

The attendance in the various colleges is listed as 1,063 in Liberal Arts, 843 in Applied Arts, 600 in Education, 659 in Business and 427 in Day Adult Education.

There are 3,189 students registered for credit courses in night school. The graduate division enrollment stands at 496.

Approximately 1,000 students are attending the Community Services, a non-credit program which includes such night lecture series as the "Legacy of Man."

Greek Comedy Film Feature of Cinema

A Greek film of international acclaim, "Windfall in Athens," will be the second presentation of the University Cinema.

The film, one of a series presented by Omaha University, will be shown October 9 at 8 p. m. in the Conference Center Auditorium.

The movie is a comedy based upon a struggle over a lottery ticket. The featured players are known as the Lunt and Fontaine of Greece.

Admission is $1.50 per person.

Bookstore Profits Rise More Than Twenty-five Percent

By Paul Beavers

The OU bookstore's total sales over the past fiscal year (Sept. 1, 1960 to Aug. 31, 1961) were up approximately 25 per cent, according to University records.

Bookstore manager Bernard (Ben) Koenig said that the increase was due to a larger enrollment and "a different type of operation."

Koenig pointed out that the increase was chalked up during the first full fiscal year the bookstore facilities have been in the Student Center, which helped to make a more efficient operation. Formerly the bookstore was located in the Administration building.

According to OU controller Harold Keefover, the total bookstore sales during the past fiscal year reached about $360,000.

No Pure Profit

He said there is no such thing as "pure profit" in the operations of the bookstore, food service, or any other facilities in the Student Center.

The total cost for the operation and maintenance of the Student Center building during the past fiscal year was "roughly $100,000," Keefover said.

"We are not even coming close" to meeting that cost, he said, "and we do not see any hope of reaching it in the near future."

"We would be delighted if the income (from Student Center operations) would cover this cost, but we don't expect it to," he said.

Bookstore Nets $30,000

The University realized "less than half" the total Student Center operating costs last year, he said.

The bookstore itself brought in about $30,000 over its own operating costs, he said. He pointed out that this sum wasn't nearly enough to cover the total operating and maintenance costs for the Student Center.

He said the food service "just about breaks even," while the game room does incur a net revenue to help defray the total Student Center operating costs.

The Student Center, he said, is theoretically self-supporting, but at the current time it is drawing from the University's general fund for operating expenses.

Two Income Sources

Keefover said the University has two general sources of income—taxes and tuition.

"We have taken on commitments for the operational costs of the Student Center," he said, and that is why the bookstore must help to pay the way.

If the bookstore did not operate with a marginal revenue return, he indicated, the Student Center operational costs would have to be financed, perhaps, through increased taxes and tuition.

OU is "in a unique position as a public institution," he said, in that "we don't usually get large endowments as do private schools."

Dr. Busch Featured At Legacy of Man

Dr. Karl Busch, chairman of Omaha University's biology department, will discuss biology and its contributions to scientific knowledge at the October 12 Legacy of Man discussion.

The speech will be delivered from 9:30 to 10 p. m. and will be broadcast by radio station KQAL-FM.

An aerial photo of the Omaha University campus shows the proportions which were undreamed of when the initial structure, the Administration building went up (left foreground). And the end doesn't seem to be in sight as plans continue for additional classroom space.

Unlike Topsy, OU Campus Well Planned

By Bill Grow

The construction of the present Administration building gave every indication that it would contain the then-bulging student and faculty body which had been steadily increasing in past years.

And for many years after it was occupied the quiet, well-planned Georgian structure proved adequate. Very little was sacrificed in the way of convenience and good workmanship when 270x200 foot brick building went up.

It was protected against invading winter winds and cold snaps with the latest insulating innovations including double windows, dead air spaces between outer and inner walls and coal boilers.

Wells Provide Air Conditioning

Artesian wells below the building were utilized to put together an air conditioning system still in use today.

And things flowed smoothly, even during the second world war.

But then the lid popped off. Soldiers came out of the khakis and onto the campus armed with time, energy, numbers and a new things called the GI Bill which enabled them to go to school.

So more and better teaching space and facilities had to be found—and they were.

The quiet little campus began to sprawl.

Athletics were bigger then ever so, of course, came a new field-house and football stadium.

Inadequacies Noticed

And, as more students trooped in, the glaring inadequacies of the Library, housed in the Administration building, became more and more apparent.

The result: The Gene Eppley Library; a modern, well lit plant capable of dispensing, retrieving and keeping track of the thousands of volumes demanded by an ever-increasing student body.

But the War wasn't through, plaguing campus planners as a large, active and demanding crop of "war babies" made their way through lower grades in such numbers that upper-level educators had to make plans to greet the youngsters as they made their way onto the OU campus.

And ready they were; after they raised two more buildings which took pressure off the existing facilities.

First the Applied Arts building was completed giving the much needed classroom space and enough room left over to allow aspiring engineering students to come "in" from the ill-equipped quonset hut they had occupied.

Then came the Student Center. And with it, room for a cafeteria, coffee shop, book store, meeting rooms, office space, lounges and other items, such as a chapel, which students hadn't even hoped.

And during all the scurry of renovating the teaching and student activities areas, school officials had to provide a parking space for the crowd.

This proved to be a monumental task in its least proportions.

Problems Still Exist

There are those who don't agree that this problem has been met; and obviously, parking problems do exist.

But if any of the dissenters would make an attempt to walk the perimeters of all the parking areas provided by the University, there would be less dissenting — they simply wouldn't have the breath for it.

And problems will arise in the future. This fact we can set in the same category as death and taxes. And, no doubt, they will be met, as they have been in the past, with progress.

First Play Named At Speech Tea

By Mike Dugan

Nearly one hundred persons turned out for the annual Speech Department Tea at the Student Center at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The tea familiarizes students with the activities available to them within the speech department.

Dr. Aldrich Paul, director of the speech department, explained extended programs and new facilities which are available to participants. Among these new offerings is the remodeled theater in the Administration building.

Donald Orban, director of debate, outlined the debate program which includes radio and television speaking.

Mr. Orban urged anyone interested in radio-television speaking or debate to contact him either Tuesday or Thursday in Room 315A in the Applied Arts building.

Dr. Edwin Clark, director of the University Theater announced that the first production this fall by the University Players will be the Broadway hit, "Life With Father."

Foreign Service Coffee Hour Set

Seniors interested in a Foreign Service Career are invited to attend a coffee hour at 10:45 a. m. October 12 in Rooms 312 A-B of the Student Center.

Howard J. Hilton who is a foreign officer with the Bureau of Economic Affairs will speak on "Foreign Service Careers."

Parking tickets are payable in Room 240 of the Administration Building.

'Life With Father' Casting October 9

Tryouts for Omaha University's first theatrical production of the season, "Life with Father," will be held October 9, 10, and 11 in Room 187 of the Administration building at 7 p.m. The play will be presented November 16-18.

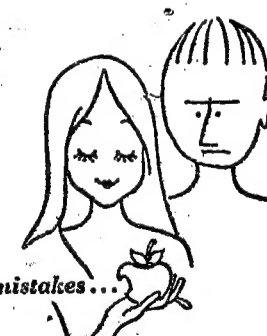

The cast of "Life with Father," a classic comic of contemporary theater, includes eight male and eight female roles.

Dr. Edwin Clark, head of the Dramatics Department, revealed that tryouts are open to everyone. "The only qualifications," he said, "are a love for the theater and a willingness to work hard."

Technically-wise, the show is detailed, according to Professor C. Harold Bush, new technical director of the University theater.

The setting of the story is a fashionable section of New York in the late 1880's. The set requires a multitude of Victorian furnishings, he added.

V. Packard To Be Double Feature Today

Bibliophiles will have a chance to hear remarks on American buying and living habits from the author of three best-selling novels dealing with that subject this afternoon.

The Conference, sponsored by the Midwest Book Association and the College of Adult Education, began at 8:30 a.m. in the Eppley Conference Center and will conclude at 3 p.m. Packard's address will begin at 1:45 p.m.

Packard will expound on "The Changing Character of America—What the Waste Makers are Doing to Us," which will be an elaboration of a theme he has developed in his novels concerning "pressure in depth" selling methods business firms are using to foist products on the American public which they neither need nor want.

During his "off-the-cuff" address, Packard will cover subjects ranging from the exploitation of the "youth market" to "planned obsolescence" and living on the "never never" (credit) system.

Tuition Low in '35

later, 148 night courses were offered, but the classes must have been the smallest in school history, because only 200 persons registered.

In 1935, tuition had jumped to $1.25 an hour.

With the old Victorian mansion's parlor, dining room, tower, and garage crowded with students, it became apparent that something would have to be done . . . and soon. Fortunately, the country was deep in the depression, and WPA funds were everywhere. So Omaha took advantage of the federal aid, and in 1939, the students moved into a new one-million dollar university "way out West of town."

The students proclaimed a day of celebration and merrymaking to observe the event, but President Rowland Haynes simultaneously proclaimed "Classes as usual." Needless to say, students celebrated their first day in their new university in class.

Speakeasies Held

All students who enjoy giving and listening to informal impromptu speeches are invited to attend the Speakeasies luncheon held at noon every Monday and Tuesday in the Student Center Cafeteria.

Orchesis Plan Dance Tryouts

Tryouts for Orchesis, the honorary dance club for men and women, will be held October 10. Interested students are invited to attend two practice sessions, October 3 and 5.

Orchesis's project this semester is the dance concert to be held December 1 and 2. There will be many types of dancing in the concert including jazz, Japanese kabuki theater dancing, and pantomime.

According to Mrs. Linda Dooley, Orchesis leader, "the club will spend second semester working on dance clinics for different high schools."

Lambda Chi, Chi Omega Win Sing

First place in the fraternity and sorority competition at the Sig Ep Sing went to Lambda Chi Alpha and Chi Omega.

Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Kappa won second place, and Sigma Kappa and Tau Kappa Epsilon were placed third.

The winners were announced and trophies presented during the intermission.

The sorority competition song was "Good Night My Someone." "Charmaine" was sung by the fraternities.

Home Ec Holds Informal Tea

An annual acquaintance tea for freshmen and transfer home economic students was held by the Home Economics Club on October 4.

The purpose of the tea was to explain the club's program to prospective members.

Margaret Killian, head of the Home Ec Department, said that more than 60 persons attended.

Roberta Wilson, Aveline Nelson, and Alice Johnson were in charge of the affair.

Officers of the Home Ec Club for this year are Sandy Deckart, president; Merium Katz, vice-president; Janet Larkin, secretary, and Diane Ulrich, treasurer.

Margaret Killian and Carolyn Kundel are the faculty sponsors.

Pen and Sword Schedule Meeting

The Society of the Pen and Sword has scheduled a meeting for October 9 at 3:30 p.m. in room 340 of the Administration Building.

The meeting has been called to elect a new board of officers from the September bootstrappers and to formulate a social calendar for this fall.

Current and prospective members are urged to attend.

OU Given Painting

Club Will Listen To Nelson, Swain

Jon Nelson and Ron Swain will report on the Grand Chapter Congress which met in Asheville, North Carolina in August at the Delta Sigma Pi meeting to be held Oct. 6.

The Omaha University chapter of Delta Sig, Gamma Eta, accumulated 100,000 efficiency points during the 1960-61 school year. This total gave the chapter first prize at the Asheville convention in the chapter efficiency contest. They placed over 100 other chapters.

Gridders Lose to Mines; Have Open Date This Week

Omaha University dropped from the ranks of the undefeated Saturday night as they fell to Colorado Mines 13-12 at Golden, Colorado. The loss stopped the Indians from achieving their first three game winning streak since 1956.

The Indians have this week off. A come-back in the last 20 minutes failed to offset the first 40 minutes that saw Omaha fall behind 13-0 while losing half of their starting backfield.

Losses Costly

Quarterback Carl Meyers injured his ankle early in the second quarter. Wayne Backes, first-string fullback, suffered a charley horse in the first quarter and was replaced by Barry Miller. Miller, with the exception of two plays, ran from the fullback slot the rest of the game.

Mines pushed to the Omaha's two yard line in the first quarter only to be thrown back to the five where OU took over on downs.

Mines opened the scoring in the second quarter.

Game Winner

The game winning touchdown came in the third quarter as Daryl Dickerhoof took a pass from Dunn on the 25 and ran the remaining yards.

Omaha scored their first touchdown after Glen Hepburn tackled the Mines punter, Bob Villagrana, on the Orediggers five yard line. Louie Miloni scored on a sweep from the three. The try for the extra point was missed.

The Indians chance to tie or win came as Dean Taylor intercepted a pass to set up a 73 yard drive in the fourth quarter climaxed when Dave Gibson scored from the three. Gibson then sent Miloni around end after the winning points. But the alert Mines defense stopped the try on the five yard line.

The Orediggers managed to run out the clock by holding on to the ball most of the remaining minutes.

Have Advantage

The once beaten Indians have an advantage in that they have two weeks to prepare for their Central Intercollegiate opener with Fort Hays, Oct. 14.

Injuries suffered by key performers should have adequate time to heal.

OU Grid Picture Changed Somewhat Over the Years

Years can make a difference, even in football.

Take 1931 for instance.

A total of 24 players finished the '31 season compared with 44 presently on OU's 1961 squad.

The OU gridgers then called the Cardinals played their games wherever possible. The school used four fields in 1931.

The first home game was played at 24th and Ames. The second home game against Buena Vista was played at Tech Field. Both were day-time contests.

Thanksgiving Contest

Rounding out the home schedule were the Homecoming game played under the lights at Omaha's Western League park and a Thanksgiving Day game with Peru in the afternoon at League park. This is a far cry from the present day facilities at OU.

Comparison

Compare these two performers with some on this years squad.

In 1931, the heaviest player was Martin Thomas, a tackle. He weighed in at 203 pounds. The next year, however, he was down to 198.

This year, two teen-agers on the Indians club, Jack Peterson and Ray Rivera are listed at 270 pounds. Several others are over the 200-pound mark.

Impressive Record

Though the Omahans were much smaller than their counterparts of today, they chalked up a six-one-one record.

The average weight of that

Papooses Win

Last week Omaha University's Papoose gridgers chalked up their second win in as many tries with a 26-13 win over Midland's "B" squad.

The next Papoose contest is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 16 with Midland's "B" squad at Fremont.

Students desiring jobs of any type—full-time or part-time—should register in the Placement Office Room 248 in the Administration Building.

Migration Set For October 21

A chance to get away from it all will be afforded Omaha University students Oct. 21.

The Inter-Pep council is sponsoring transportation to the Emporia State football game as part of OU's migration this year.

Students interested in traveling to Emporia for the night Central Intercollegiate Conference game are urged to register for the trip Oct. 11, 12 and 13.

The Inter-Pep Council will have a booth on the main floor of the Student Center during these days from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for this purpose.

Georgia Clark, head of the pep council, urges students to register in groups of three or four.

Those who wish to attend can pick up tickets for the game in the Athletic Office in the Field House. The ticket cost per person is 75 cents. If tickets were purchased at Emporia they would cost more.

The contingent will leave at 9 a.m. Saturday and arrive home approximately at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The cost of the trip, game and housing will not include meals.

Harriers Face Busy Schedule

Omaha University's cross country runners will be looking for their first win of the 1961 campaign Saturday morning.

Students who were assigned to restricted physical education due to the result of their first physical are expected to have a recheck as soon as possible in the Student Health room.

See the Team

By Waldo

The team is going away. They will play football with Fort Hayes. It is far away in Kansas. They will play good. See the team run and play good? If you can't see the team run and play good, tell them to play good. Tell them to run and play good next Friday morning when they go away.

The team will go on a big bus. See the big bus? It will south of the field house next Friday morning at 8:30. See the players get on the big bus and go away? Yell at the players to win. They will win if you yell. The team will be sad if you're not there to yell "goodbye" and "win" at them.

The Gateway will be there. Come and see the funny Gateway people. The band will be there. Hear the band play. The Indians will be there. They are pretty girls. They will yell "win." See the pretty girls. Now we know you'll be there, won't you? Be there.
